By Chief Master Sgt. Rob McCormack, 134 ARW Fire Chief

McGhee Tyson military and civilian firefighters of them begging for more time in the simulator under tougher conditions.

Special thanks go out to Chief Doug McClanahan, Captain Tim Ogle, and Lieutenant Mike Hatcher of the Blount County Fire Department for allowing us to use the training trailer free of charge. Their graciousness exemplifies the attitudes recently completed extensive confined space training exercises using a specialized training asset provided by the Blount County Fire Department. The training encompassed a variety of scenarios which included navigating through extremely tight spaces while wearing full firefighter protective equipment and of emergency responders throughout our region. Furthermore, it strengthens relationships between the 134th Air Refueling Wing and local response agencies in the event a large scale emergency occurs requiring responders from multiple agencies to work together to meet a common goal. Lieutenant Hatcher was presented an Air National Guard

Firefighter challenge coin in a display of gratitude for his support.

Leading the training for the 134th firefighters was SSgt Travis Neely and SSgt Todd Morse; Two of our finest NCO's and local volunteer firefighters in their communities.

"ANGEL TREE"

Submitted by Steve Latham, 134 ARW Family Readiness Coordinator

The McGhee Tyson Family Program Office is once again sponsoring our annual "Angel Tree" event. You have the opportunity to help a less fortunate child this holiday season by picking an "Angel" from the Angel Tree. The Angel will identify whether the child is a boy or girl, their age and their wish. This year, please place the unwrapped gift in a "gift bag" and then place under the tree with the Angel attached. Please return all gifts by the Dec UTA so they can be distributed before Christmas. We hope you will share in the gift of giving!

The strength of our Nation comes from its people. As the early inhabitants of this great land, the native peoples of North America played a unique role in the shaping of our Nation's history and culture. During this month when we celebrate Thanksgiving, we especially celebrate their heritage and the contributions of American Indian and Alaska Native peoples to this Nation.

Since our Nation's birth, pluralism and diversity have been hallmarks of the American experience and success. In 1782, the Founding Fathers chose as our national motto "E Pluribus Unum," which means "out of many, one." Today, America's unity, derived from a mix of many diverse cultures and people, grandly embodies the vision expressed by our Founders. American Indian and Alaska Native cultures have made remarkable contributions to our national identity. Their unique spiritual, artistic, and literary contributions, together with their vibrant customs and celebrations, enliven and enrich our land.

Information Assurance

Submitted by Master Sgt. Dora Jennings, 134 CF

While filling in as the Wing Information Assurance Manager I thought it would be a good idea to get Back to the Basics of Information Assurance.

This article defines information assurance from a military point of view, addressing the five pillars of information assurance: availability, integrity, authentication, confidentiality, and non-repudiation. Most of these tenets can be applied to any network commercial or military.

Information Assurance (IA) consists of “measures that protect and defend information and information systems by ensuring their availability, integrity, authentication, confidentiality, and non-repudiation. This includes providing for the restoration of information systems by incorporating protection, detection, and reaction capabilities.” (Department of Defense Directive 8500.1 “Information Assurance,” October 24, 2002)

Secure communications have evolved through three very distinct stages over the past 50 years: Communications Security (COMSEC), Information Systems Security (INFOSEC) and Information Assurance (IA). After WWII and the Korean War, COMSEC efforts focused primarily on cryptography. The introduction and widespread use of computers created new demands to protect information exchanges between interconnected computer systems. This demand created the Computer Security (COMPUSEC) discipline. With the introduction of COMPUSEC came the recognition that stand-alone COMSEC and stand-alone COMPUSEC could not protect information during storage, processing or transfer between systems. This recognition gave rise to the term INFOSEC and the information protection mission took on a broader perspective. IA emerged and focused on the need to protect information during transit, processing, or storage within complex and/or widely dispersed computers and communication system networks. There needs to be an assurance that the information sent is the same information that is received.

Availability is the state where information is in the place needed by the user, at the time the user needs it, and in the form needed by the user. The issues that most directly affect availability are information system reliability (is it up and running?), the informational level of importance (some information is more critical than others), and timely information delivery (delay of some information has a greater impact than other information).

Integrity is sound, unimpaired, or perfect condition. This includes system integrity and data integrity.

Authentication verifies the identity of the user, device, or other entity in a computer system, often as a prerequisite to allowing access to resources in a system, and to verify the integrity of data that have been stored, transmitted, or otherwise exposed to possible unauthorized modification. Authentication ensures that you have the right to see the information, and that you are who you say you are. The two elements most often associated with authentication are logins and passwords.

Confidentiality is the concept of holding sensitive data in confidence, limited to an appropriate set of individuals or organizations. Confidentiality is often referred to as information security. Here we deal with two issues: clearances and data security. In the military, there is a distinction between having a security clearance and having a need to know. Just because someone has a Top Secret security clearance doesn't entitle him or her to read every Top Secret document in the world. They can only access those that pertain to their job.

Non-repudiation is a service that provides proof of the integrity and origin of data, which can be verified by any third party at any time. Two of the services that support non-repudiation are digital signatures and encryption. Biometric and retinal scans are right around the corner and are being used by some organizations.

Summary

We are all involved in information assurance. Not only do we depend on it to do our work, but also we are involved in making sure it works. Remember, information is only as good as the assurance that we apply to it.

Not all information needs to be protected at the same level, but all information needs to be protected.
