134 ARW Teams with Knoxville Bomb Squad for Active Shooter Exercise

Article & Photos by Tech. Sgt. Daniel Gagnon, 134 ARW Public Affairs

MCGHEE TYSON AIR NATIONAL GUARD BASE, Tenn. (Sept. 28, 2016) – On the morning of September 13 McGhee Tyson's base intercom came alive with "Exercise, Exercise, Exercise." The base went into a lockdown as an active shooter practice exercise started at approximately 0800. An active shooter exercise is a simulated exercise where a person attempts or carries out the shooting of a person or persons. The exercise trains base personnel on how to respond in the event of an active shooter.

"We have an annual requirement for the active shooter exercise," said Senior Master Sgt. Randall Johnson, Operation Superintendent for the 134th Security Forces Squadron. "We always find it's a good opportunity for other squadrons to meet their training requirements also."

The annual exercise involved the 134th Security Forces Squadron, fire department, medical group, wing inspection team and the Knoxville County Sheriff Bomb Squad.

The fictitious perpetrator left simulated injured victims scattered around the headquarters building before meeting his demise, due to the quick response of Security Forces personnel, in the headquarters parking lot. The dummy laid crumpled at the base of a tree. Different entities responded to the exercise and were evaluated by the wing inspection team.

The Knoxville County Sheriff Bomb Squad picked up where Security Forces left off. The dummy, the fictitious perpetrator, sported a backpack which was leaking a white powder. The bomb squad was tasked to investigate the backpack.

"This is a good training opportunity for me," said Thomas Strickland, Lt. Commander of the Knoxville bomb squad. "We are able to bring our people out here and work with you all, and do real live scenario work with you."

"Every time we work with Security Forces, it's been a smooth operation," said Strickland. "The planning and the exercise itself is not difficult, we just work it out and do it."

The training is some of the most realistic training that the Knoxville bomb squad can get compared to other agencies.

"We have a great working relationship with the local law enforcement," said Senior Master Sgt. Randall Johnson. "We have memorandums of agreement with them. They are always here and we try to make it worth their while."

With shootings in the country becoming an unfortunate reality, active shooter training is becoming a routine practice on how to deal with a serious growing problem, in both the National Guard and civilian world.

End of Year Luncheon a "Big Hit"

Members of the 134th enjoyed the cooler weather and pizza recently at the Annual End-of-Year Luncheon at the Fire Station. Security Forces held a fund-raiser at the luncheon for their Annual Santa Cops event that will be held in Dec. The fund-raiser included bashing one of three old junk vehicles with tools such as a baton and a fire axe. Members were allowed to "give it their best shot" to see how much damage they could do to the vehicles in exchange for a donation to Santa Cops. (U.S. Air National Guard photos by Tech. Sgt. Human Trafficking Real Threat in East Tennessee

Submitted by Lt. Col. James Blanton, 134 ARW CTIP Coordinator

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (WVLT) -- Sex trafficking is happening all over the country, including right here in Tennessee. On Friday, May 20, 2016, TBI announced that 32 people were arrested after a three-day human trafficking sting in Knoxville.

This is what you need to know to spot and stop this from happening in your neighborhood.

How traffickers prey on victims

According to Kate Truddell with the Community Coalition against Human Trafficking says traffickers are looking for victims with a weakness. "Traffickers are master manipulators and they know exactly how to identify a weakness and exploit that," she said. Those weaknesses can be a range of things from drug problems, broken homes to runaways.

Knoxville Police Chief David Rausch says these traffickers know just what to say to convince victims. "There's a lot of scripts that they use. They'll use everything from modeling careers, and tell them, 'Hey I've got connections, I'm going to take you to Knoxville and we're going to make your modeling career. And that's not what it is,'" he said. Chief Rausch said the pictures they take of the victims end up on websites like Backpage.com as advertisements for sex.

Warning signs of a trafficking victim

There are several red flags to watch out for when it comes to trafficking victims.

According to the TBI those signs include:

- Inconsistencies in their story
- Unexplained increase in money, clothing, or goods
- Inappropriate dress
- Fear of authority
- Being malnourished or having injuries
- Not having identification
- Brands or being marked with a tattoo
- Not having control of their own money
- Carrying hotel keys or key cards
- Having few personal possessions
- Wearing the same clothes, regardless of weather or circumstance
- Claiming to be an adult, even though their appearance suggest adolescence
- Not being allowed to come and go independently
- Being accompanied by someone who controls their every move
- Talk of an older boyfriend or sex with an older man

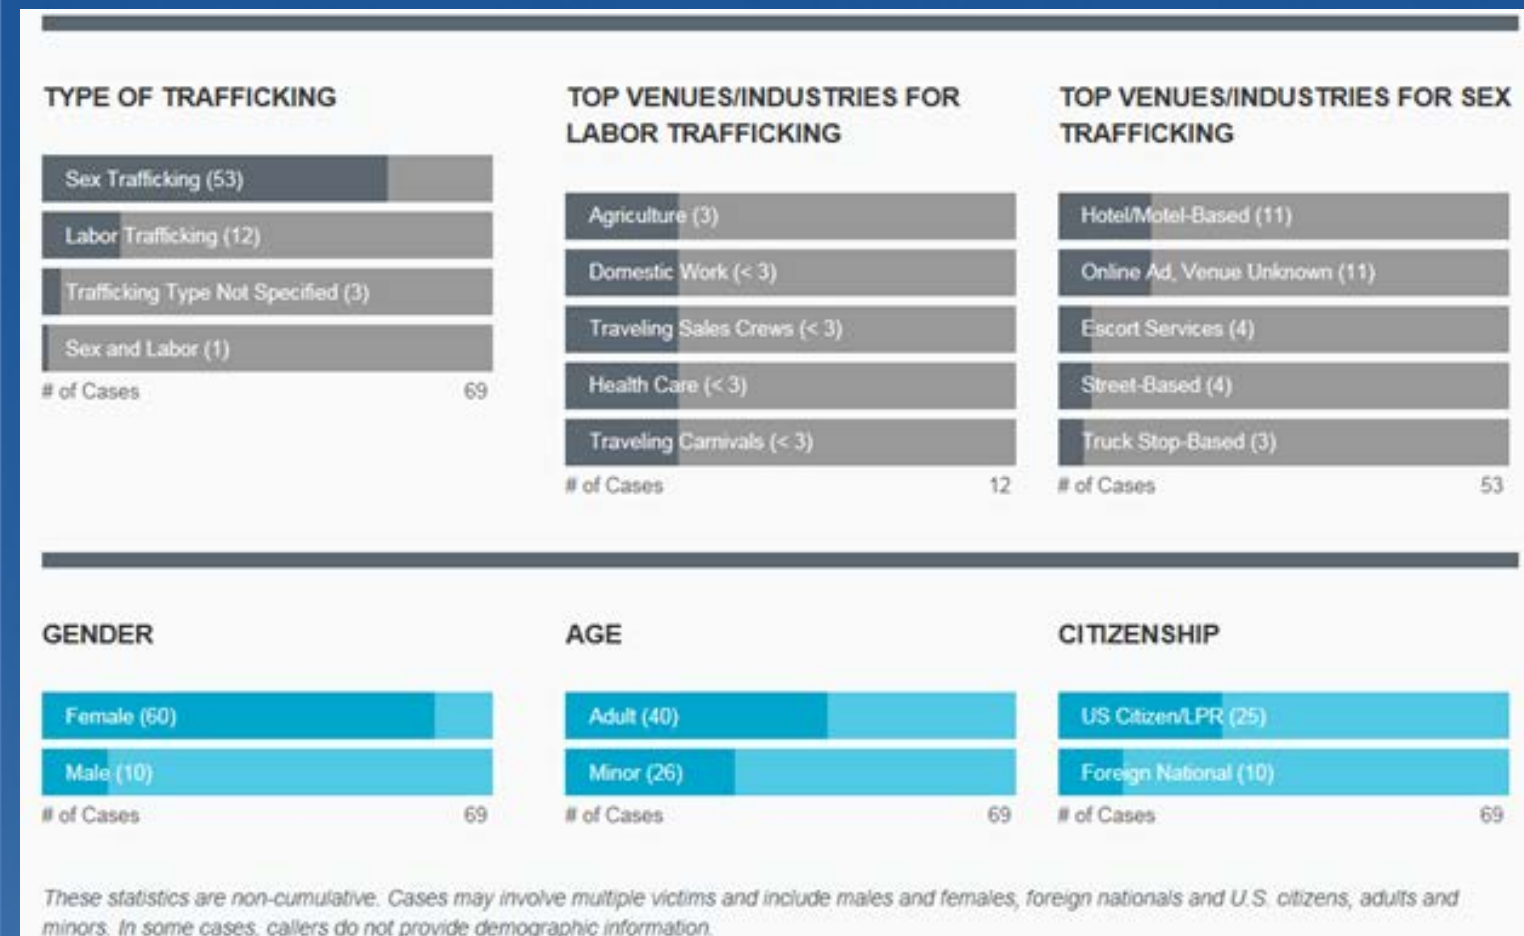

What can you do?

If you suspect someone is a victim of trafficking or witness activity that could be related to trafficking, you're asked to call Tennessee Human Trafficking Resource Center Hotline at 1-855-558-6484 or 1-800-TBI-FIND. If you have further questions about human trafficking or this article please contact Lt Col. James Blanton, 134 ARW CTIP Coordinator at 336-4444. This article was obtained from <http://www.local8now.com/content/news/What-you-need-to-know-about-human-trafficking-in-East-Tennessee-380291411.html> Just as reminder, ensure that your TRAFFICKING IN PERSONS TFAT and those you supervise is current. TIPS TFAT training must be current prior to deployment (AFI 36-2921 3.12 & 3.14).

Human trafficking, in any form is modern slavery and it occurs in every state, including Tennessee. The National Human Trafficking Resource Center (NHTRC), operated by the Polaris Project, works closely with service providers, law enforcement, and other professionals in Tennessee to combat this crime. The mission of the NHTRC is to serve victims and survivors of trafficking, respond to human trafficking cases, and share information and resources. The NHTRC also collects and analyzes data in efforts to monitor trends in human trafficking. The following is a breakdown of statistics collected from human trafficking cases, in Tennessee, reported to the NHTRC in 2015 (NHTRC). Note that of the reported cases in Tennessee, 14% were male, almost 40% were children, and 71% were U.S. Citizens. Human trafficking affects all races and nationalities, both sexes, and the young and old. In a recent law enforcement operation targeting human trafficking (prostitution) in Chattanooga, TN, nearly every victim encountered accepted social services assistance to escape their situation. Most victims were held "captive" by their pimps through opiate pain killer addiction and intimidation. As we go about our daily lives, we must be aware of our surroundings and use our "6th Sense" to identify these victims that are silent but in need of rescue. If you suspect human trafficking in your area please contact your local law enforcement agency or the Tennessee Bureau of Investigation at 1800-TBI-FIND. If you have further questions about human trafficking or this article please contact Lt Col. James Blanton, 134 ARW/IGQ CTIP Coordinator at 336-4444. Just as a reminder, ensure that your TRAFFICKING IN PERSONS CBT and those you supervise is current. For those scheduled for OCONUS TDY/deployment, you must have CTIP Training with the past 365 days (AFI 36-2931). NHTRC. (n.d.). National Human Trafficking Resource Center/Tennessee.
